A Biblical Theology of Missions: George Peters

Mission is the divine activity of sending intermediaries, whether supernatural or human, to speak or do God's will so that his purposes for judgment or redemption are furthered. The biblical concept is expressed by the use of verbs meaning "to send, " normally with God as the expressed subject.

A Biblical Theology of Missions: Peters, George W

The biblical basis for missions is the Word of God spoken in divine authority; it is the mandate of Christ. We live in a time wherein the secular culture and many ecclesiastical authorities dismiss the whole concept of world missions. Some claim that the time of world missionary activity is over.

Bing: A Biblical Theology Of Missions

Mission in the Bible finds its raison d'être in the failure of God's first son (Adam) in the covenant of works to establish worldwide worship. Adam was meant to win righteousness, life, and justification for the human race and lead us to worship God in spirit and truth; instead he brought sin, death, and condemnation on the human race and led us into idolatrous worship of created things instead of our Creator.

"It is my impression that the Bible is not a book about theology as such, but rather, a record of theology in mission - God in action in behalf of the salvation of mankind." George W. Peters writes like an academic, but it's good for you to read a little over your head (in my case, a lot over my head).
